Kids today are getting computer and net savvy even before they learn to walk! The need for kid-friendly keyboards and other peripherals becomes even more relevant when you consider the kind of long-term impact using a keyboard designed for adults can have on the developing limbs and fingers of the little ones. Taking an initiative in providing a safe computing experience for children, myPC Toddler launched a keyboard especially tailored to meet the needs of tiny beginners at the Toy Fair. The water-proof, washable keyboard comes complete with a kiddie mouse to help the children practice their typing and net skills. The keyboard also lacks a period key to make sure your child does not get involved in any of the bad stuff online.
